

04/03/09 - Online catalog website for machinery company

Makepak International Trading Ltd sells high value equipment (often running into several hundred thousand pounds per sale) for use in cigarette manufacture and packaging, sourcing and supplying worldwide. They require a website to show their machinery and products to the world, which performs well, allows them to update the equipment regularly and keep their subscriber list informed by email and/or rss feed. At the same time, they wanted a simple looking, easy to use site with a clean look.

After extensive collaboration with Makepak's managing director I came up with a very nice looking design which displayed their products with up to 20 photographs per item, and also featured and rss feed, and an email subscription service. An easy to use admin panel allows Makepak staff to quickly add, edit or remove machines from their website, and also lets them choose to email their entire subscriber list as soon as a new item is posted to their website.

Screenshot of item information page Makepak have been so pleased with the performance of the site on Google and it has generated many leads and sales for them already. I am currently working together with Makepak on further additions to the site as part of their internet marketing strategy.

The website was completely coded from scratch in CSS, XHTML1, ASP and SQL and is hosted by me. As usual, it was completed on time and within budget.
